Dear Parents and Caregivers,

STELLA MARIS ADOPT-A-COP
Parents and students may notice a police vehicle in the school car park from time to time. That is because a couple of weeks ago I had the privilege of being officially adopted by the Stella Maris School as their Adopt-A-Cop. My name is Senior Constable Rachael Whalan and I received a very warm welcome from the students, teachers and parents who were present at that assembly.

Most of my time at work is spent investigating unfortunate things like car crashes and criminal offences. Luckily I also get to do some more enjoyable tasks and part of my job is to take a special interest in the goings on at Stella Maris School.

This will involve getting to know students in the playground and taking up invitations from teachers to talk to students in classrooms on areas of interest or concern where police may have a unique perspective to offer. I may also attend some school functions throughout the year.

So while my involvement in the school will be somewhat limited to the time available (a couple of days each term), I very much look forward to getting to know as many of you as possible and becoming involved in the Stella Maris School community.

ATHLETICS CARNIVAL – Prep – Yr 3
Last Friday we finally managed to hold an Athletics day for the Prep to Yr 3 students. Wet weather has postponed previous attempts. The year 7’s have been working with the students to learn all about war cries and there were some hoarse voices by the end of the day (especially some very enthusiastic teachers). It was a totally different program that had been developed by Mrs Curtis (OC) and Mrs Till (Phys Ed) and the events ran very close to time. Some folks asked why we started at 11.30am instead of 9am because that would have allowed the day to finish early and then parents could take their children home. By finishing at 3.00pm the older siblings were able to complete their day at school. When we finish an event earlier than 3.00pm some parents collect all the members of the family and take them home early. It is a matter of convenience but it does disrupt learning time and it is extra work for the staff at reception to enter the details into the electronic attendance register. Teachers plan a full day of learning for their class and taking students home early means they do miss some of the planned learning activities. You might like to consider waiting until 3.05pm to pickup as usual when attending an event that finishes earlier than 3.05pm. It’s never all the class that is collected so the teachers will be supervising students who remain until the end of the day.

Weather permitting we will hold the Yr 4-7 Athletics carnival this coming Friday, the last day of the term, with a more familiar schedule of Races being held over at the Maroochy High track followed by the traditional field events being staged on Hunter and Bliss ovals back at Stella. War cries will feature again at the sprints scheduled to commence at 9.00am.

Lost Property - With this being the last week of the term it is an opportunity to check if there is any lost or missing property and if so have a look in the lost property bin which resides near the entrance to the Yr 7 classrooms. The bin was nearly overflowing yesterday following the Prep-Yr 3 carnival last Friday. Please remind your children to be especially careful of their property during the Yr 4-7 Athletics carnival on the last day of term.

Pot Hole - It is my hope that the pot hole will be patched during the holidays. To say the least this has been quite a saga to date and may well be an ongoing issue for us as the quote to do the work required to ensure no further issues was extremely expensive involving several alterations to the existing roadway to remove all water from the surface in a timely manner. Apparently it’s water that gets into the asphalt that creates these holes and as you know it rains a bit around here! We will continue to explore options however we will patch the existing craters. I hope, where possible, you get to enjoy your children’s company during the two weeks of the holidays while the staff take an opportunity to refresh and rejuvenate. We look forward to returning on Tuesday 8th October as the Monday is the Labour Day Public Holiday.

Dear Parents/Caregivers,

Virtue in focus. With the holidays fast approaching, perhaps examining the Virtue of Peacefulness in detail – i.e. what it looks like, sounds like, feels like - may help with the practicalities of having the children at home and interacting peacefully in a more sustained way.

Peacefulness involves approaching conflict in such a way that it is being fair to others and yourself. Practicing peacefulness helps to create a calm mind free from worry. Peacemakers find there are many creative ways to solve any problem.

To find inner peace:
- Become very still and think peaceful thoughts;
- Observe and think about your feelings, like anger, instead of acting with anger;
- Talk things out & listen to the other person too;
- Use peaceful language instead of name-calling, yelling or gossiping;
- Avoid aggressive or violent actions.

Peacefulness comes especially in quiet moments of reflection or gratitude and brings with it an inner sense of calm. It is quietening your thoughts as well as your body and looking at things carefully so you can understand them. Peacefulness is giving up the love of power for the power of love. Violence never solves anything. With peacefulness, believe it or not, everyone wins. The following quote from Lao Tsu explains how the Virtue of Peace in the world begins with peace in your heart:

Cultivate virtue in your self, and virtue will be real. Cultivate virtue in the family, and virtue will flourish. Cultivate virtue in the village and virtue will spread. Cultivate virtue in the nation and virtue will be abundant. Cultivate virtue in the world and virtue will triumph everywhere.

(https://www.ppseawa.org/peace-initiatives/the-virtue-peacefulness)

Without peace, no one is safe; people get hurt. Fighting doesn’t solve problems and no one really wins a war. With peacefulness, any problem can be solved. When you respect others and their differences and are peaceful, people around you feel calm and safe.

Please continue to keep in your prayers our world leaders and the people of Syria so that negotiations may result in a resolution which will help the peace process, rather than hinder it.

I hope you and your family find some time to relax and smell the roses over the holidays.

God bless, Judith.
TIP OF THE WEEK – for Parents - Make a point to talk to your child’s teacher. Find out what areas your child needs to improve on so that you can implement that during your practice time at home.

It has been a long, busy and also productive and successful term! Thank you to all students for your focus and commitment to music activities in Term 3.

MUSIC COUNT US IN – Thursday 31 October
Music Count Us In is Australia’s biggest school initiative. With support from The Australian Government, it has run since 2007 and is all about celebrating the value of music education to students’ development, wherever they are. It involves more than 600,000 students, teachers - and often parents – from schools all over Australia who sign up to learn, rehearse, then perform the same song, on the same day, at the same time.

Music: Count Us In is for all schools - primary and secondary, State and independent, nationwide. It doesn’t cost anything for schools to participate and all the support materials, including song charts and arrangements and classroom activity kits are freely available and downloadable. The following link provides more information about ‘Music Count Us In’ as well as the audio for this year’s song.

Parent-Child Communication TV versus Toys & Books

Since the first television screens lit up our living rooms scientists have been studying its effect on young children. Why? Because watching TV can lead to less interaction between parents and children, which then lowers a child's literacy and language skills.

There are differences in the way mums communicate with their children while engaged with books, toys, and TV. When a mum and child are focusing on the same object, be that a book, toy or TV show, the mother's response can have an important impact on their child's understanding and self-perception.

By explaining and describing objects or new words and images, or by prompting conversation through questions, mum can help to engage her child with the activity. The parent can also provide positive feedback and encouragement to a child, or repeat what the child has said to help familiarize them with certain words or sights.

Mothers who are communicating with their child promote a positive self-perception for the child as well as fostering trust in the parent.

If maternal responsiveness is absent, children learn that their environment is unpredictable and may become anxious, knowing that their bids for attention or help may be ignored.

Mothers who co-read books communicate significantly more with their children than mothers watching TV. The amount of communication involved in reading was not significantly higher than playing with toys. However, the quality of maternal responsiveness was higher in books than toys.

The team found that when reading a book with their children parents used a more active communication style, bringing the child into contact with words they may not hear in everyday speech, thereby improving their vocabulary and grammatical knowledge. In contrast watching TV resulted in significantly fewer descriptions and positive responses than mothers playing with toys.

Reading books together increases the maternal communication beyond a level required for reading, while watching TV decreased maternal communication. This is significant when we consider the amount of time young children spend watching TV. In some cases children are left alone to watch TV, missing out on any parental communication at a critical stage in their development.

Wonder how this applies to DVD’s in cars and does a Nintendo DS play iSpy?
